The exhibit of cannon balls in Mr. Pegram's office at 165 Broadway has interfered with the business of the office to some extent, since he has been required to tell the story of their finding to all his visitors. The first of the cannon balls found was presented to Mr. Pegram by Mr. De Ryss, engineer in charge of the subway construction. It was polished and mounted on a marble stand, hearing an appropriately inscribed gold plate.

Another cannon ball, about six inches in diameter and weighing nearly fifty pounds, was presented by Mr. Pegram to Frank H. Hedley, vice-president and general manager of the Interborough, who announced that he would have it polished and placed on a heavy iron stand, to be used in the hallway of his residence as a hatrack.

The cannon balls were all found in excavating a section near the Battery, 15 feet wide and 200 feet long, and

He underwent an operation some months ago.

Mr. Crowell was the son of John Crowell of Westchester, Pa. He was born on October 13, 1848, and was graduated from the Pennsylvania Polyuated from the Pennsylvania Poly-technic College in 1867. He entered upon the practice of his profession as a civil engineer in Philadelphia and later a civil engineer in Philadelphia and later his services were enlisted by the Government in connection with the proposed construction of a canal over either the Nicaragua or the Panama route.

After completing his task of developing Fatrmount Park, Philadelphia, for the purposes of the exhibition he became a construction engineer for the Pennsylvania Railroad. He was recognized as an expert in railroad construction and hydraulic engineering and did much work in Canada, the West Indies and Central America, as well as in various parts of the United States.

Mayor McClellan appointed Mr. Crowell Street Commissioner in 1907, and his work in that office was highly committee selected by the Merchants Association to study the water supply system and he developed the plans for the present high pressure fire protection system.

and he developed the plans for the pres-ent high pressure fire protection system. At one time he was a member of the Board of Health of Queens and later was consulting engineer of that borough, to which he devoted much of his time in his later years, with the hope of mak-ing that borough a great residential and manufacturing centre. He was a men-ber of the American Society of Civ Engineers, the Institute of Civil Er gineers of Great Britain and the Geo aphical Society and was a trustee of Flushing Hospital. He wrote a number of works on engineering subjects, including "Training a Tropic Torrent." "How Holland Was Made" and "Modern Wharves and Harbor Facilities."

Mr. Crowell was married in 1881 to Miss Anna McKinstry Whiting He leaves his wife and two sons, the Rev. John W. Crowell, an Episcopalian dergyman, and Prancis Sterling Crowell, an engineer.
